On A Clear Day —
We Invite You To . . .

On a clear day

Rise and look around you

And you'll see

Who you are.

On a clear day

How it will astound you

That the glow of your being

Outshines every star.

You'll be part of Every mountain, sea or shore

And you can see from far and near

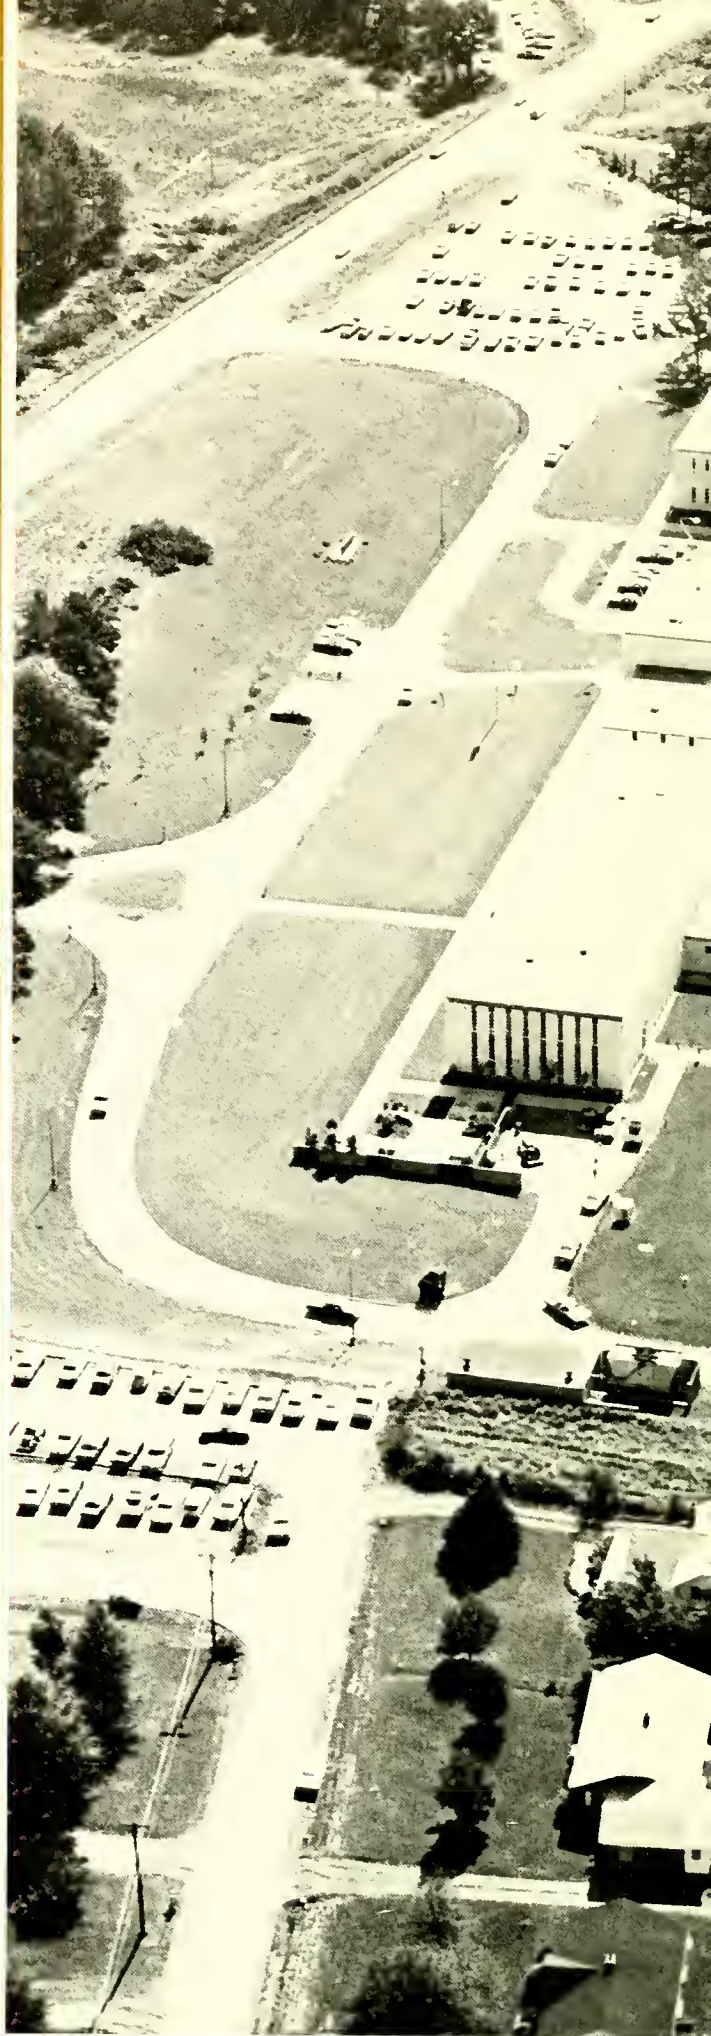

A world you've never seen before.

So — on a clear day

On a clear day

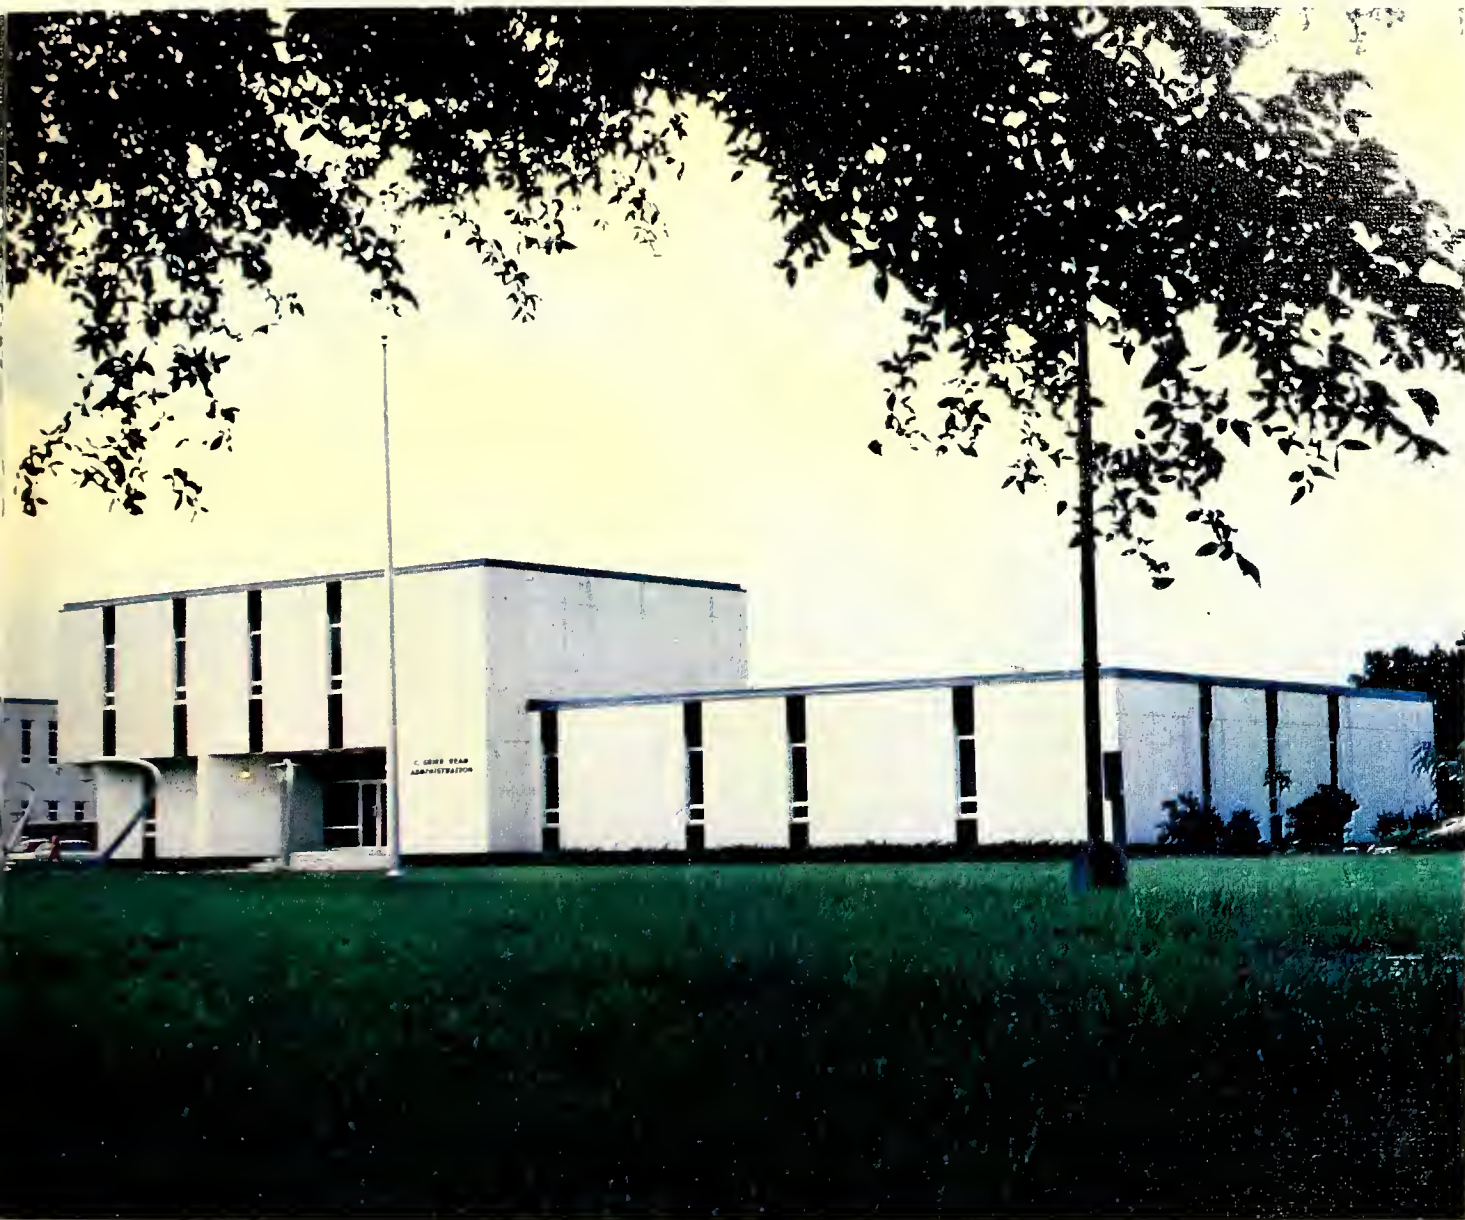

You can see forever and evermore

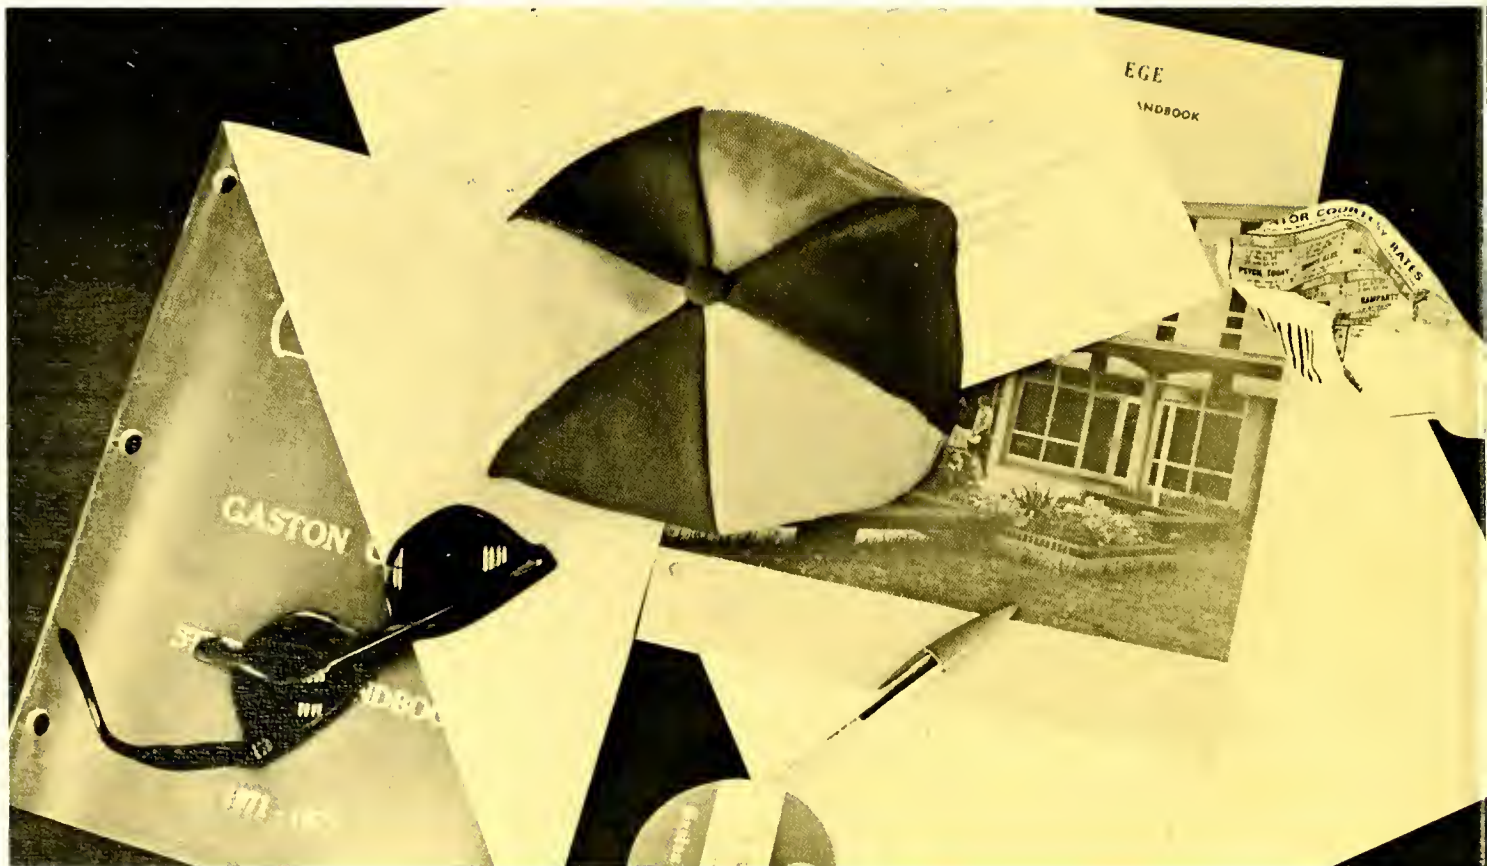

By: Alan Jay Lerner

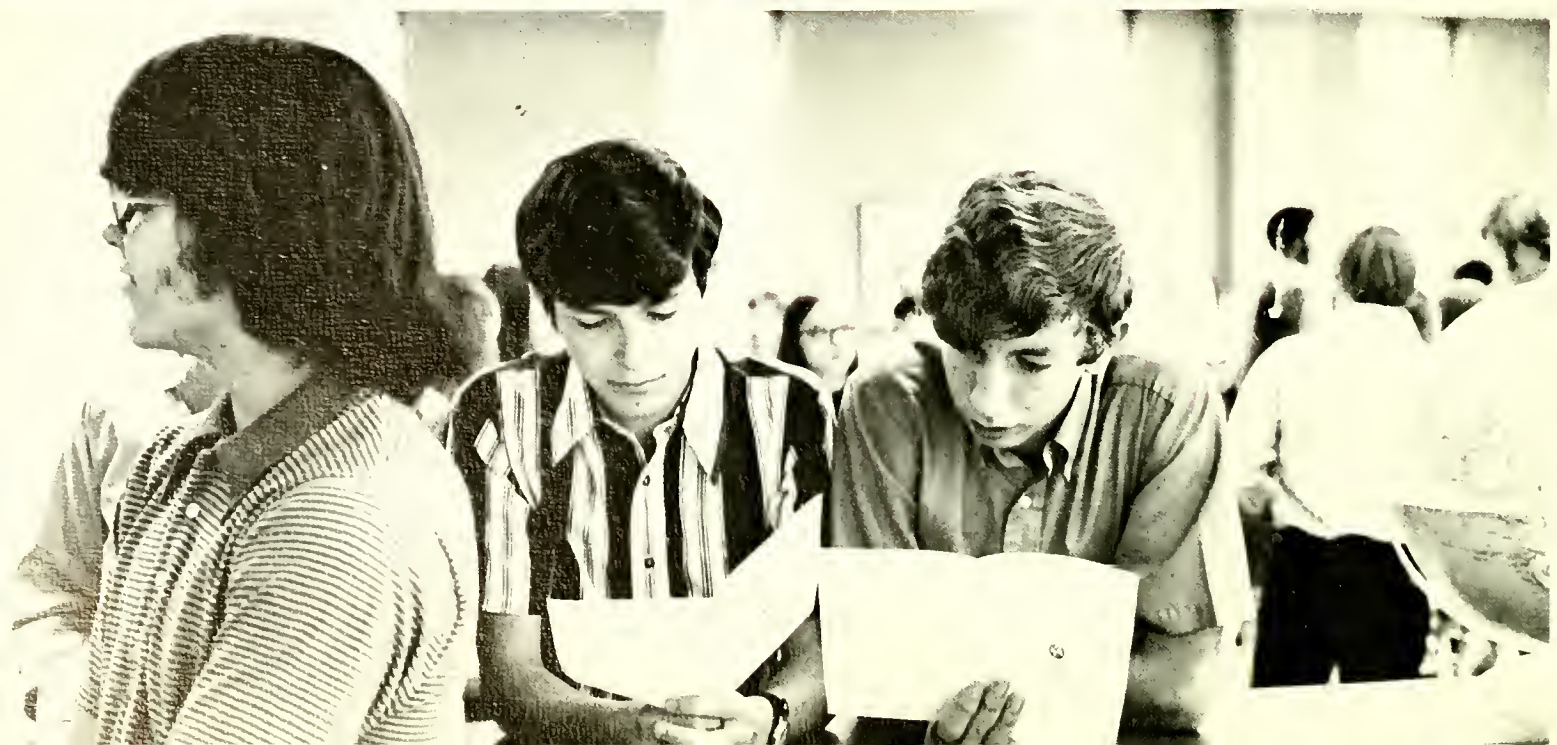

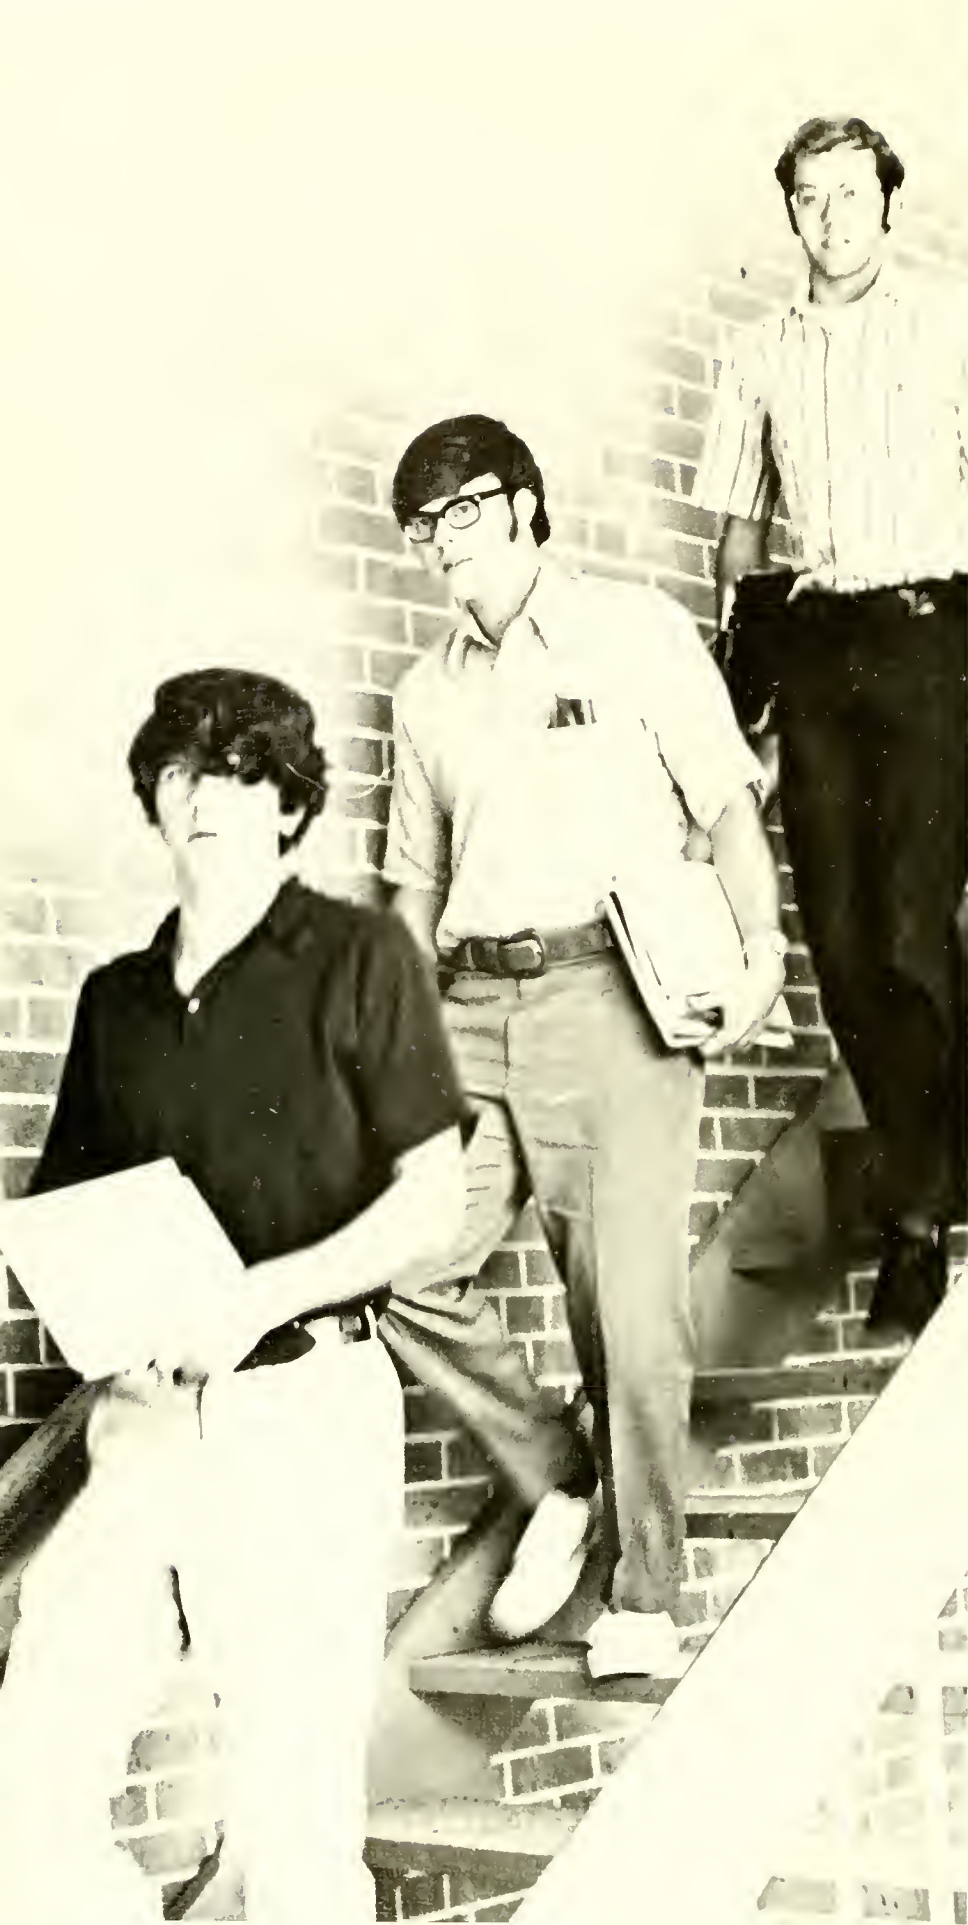

Memories haunt the corridors, evoking and recalling the verb “remember,” nurtured by time and season. The ghosts of dawns once felt and sunsets known continue to paint the endless portrait of which we are but small specks, reflecting light and darkness of the word “gone.”

The empty rooms that were our old companions look as they did – silent yet speaking – more unheard than listened to. Faces of innocence and cynical security exist as in the former days, looking but never seeing.

Administration

Doctor Woodrow B. Sugg, President

For us, the occasion of our "Showing to the Community" Gaston College is a warm and exciting one. Whether rain or shine, we're confident that — in symbol — no clearer days may ever dawn for our Community than those on which people, seeking fulfillment and self-improvement by learning, enter Gaston College to gain knowledge, sharpen techniques, acquire skills.

Lyricaly, we offer you an inspirational challenge to "Rise and Look Around You" at this . . . Your College.

Logically, we invite you to See It Like It is — Understand How It Serves — Share In What It Must Be.

Sincerely, we appeal to your interest and concern and ask for your support.

Happily, we remind you of the dividends in community well-being that follow. It's unalterable as is the sequence of Day and Night — comprehensive education of individuals within a community produces a richer community!

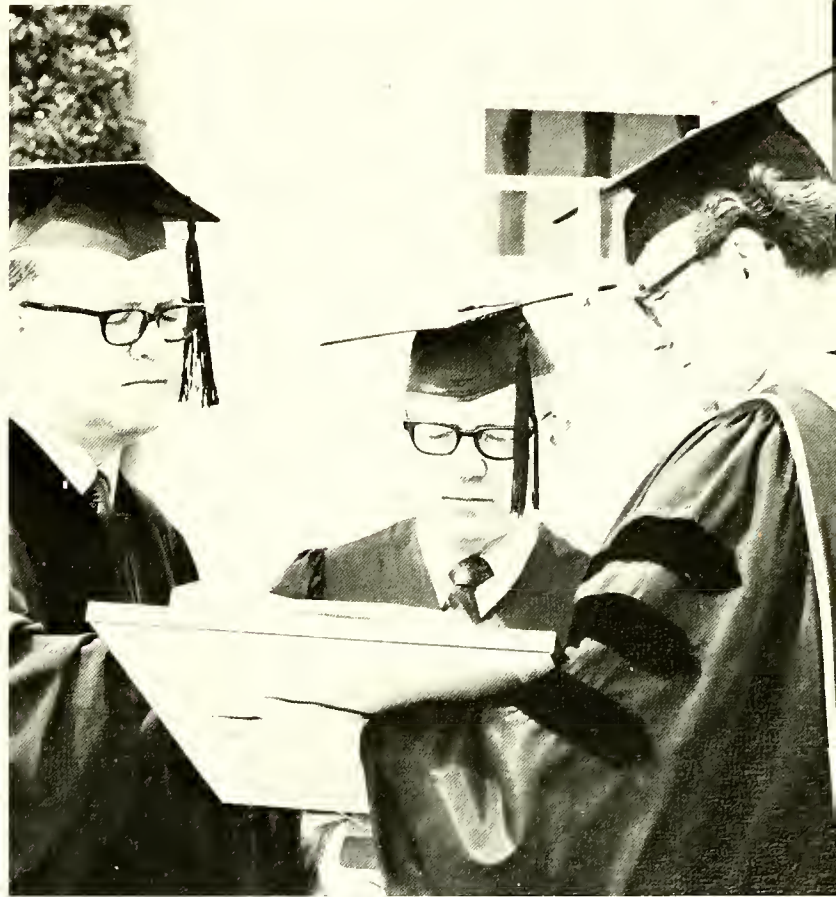

In Memory of:

Mrs. Rebecca Miller Wells Carpenter

People build bridges in order to escape from the islands created by their own sense of aloneness. These bridges are constructed in the dark of our own minds amid the isolation of our loneliness.

Mrs. Carpenter, Director of Gaston College's Learning Resources Center since its beginning, helped many of us to create our own beginnings by providing the light and constant caring so NEEDED to give us the courage to carry on. Any person who was so fortunate as to have known Mrs. Carpenter will attest to the fact that every book, film strip, magazine, and piece of equipment in the center was thought by her to be not her personal possession but rather on loan to her only until she could talk us into taking it into our own possession. By "owning" nothing, she had (and gave) all.

We dedicate:

Mrs. Eleanor McArver
Mr. Raymond Fuhrer

"Knowledge gained is of no real worth

There are in every institution of learning those individuals who with quiet competence make a superb contribution to the academic process.

Raymond A. Fuhrer, for twelve years Chairman of the Electrical Engineering Technology Department, has been in the forefront of the effort to develop programs in engineering technology designed to bridge the educational gap between the craftsman and the graduate engineer. The success of his achievement is evidenced by the widespread demand for the graduating electrical technicians in industry and by ten years of accreditation by the Engineers' Council for Professional Development.

A mature, thoughtful man of learning and broad experience, Mr. Fuhrer has an enthusiasm for his subject and rapport with his students which create an atmosphere for educational excellence.

With admiration and gratitude, we dedicate this yearbook to Mr. Raymond Fuhrer.

An example of total sharing of both her knowledge and her self, Eleanor Moore McArver has been much more than a professor of English since she joined the Technical faculty in 1956. From representing her profession abroad under the auspices of the English-Speaking Union, to filling in as cafeteria chef when the campus was snowed in, she has brought to all her endeavors those "plus" values which are the mark of a dedicated person.

A woman in a man's world of slide rules and drawing boards, Mrs. McArver has been a strong advocate of teaching the technician as much eloquence as expertise in his chosen field, and numbers of students have returned to thank her for this emphasis.

With respect and appreciation, we dedicate this yearbook to Mrs. Eleanor McArver.

Classes

This is Gaston College, a two-year Community College in the State Educational Program, located in Dallas, North Carolina; owned and operated (with State assistance in certain phases) by citizens of Gaston County. Chartered in 1963, Gaston College is one of the few Community Colleges in the South approved by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools and also with programs approved by the Engineers' Council for Professional Development.

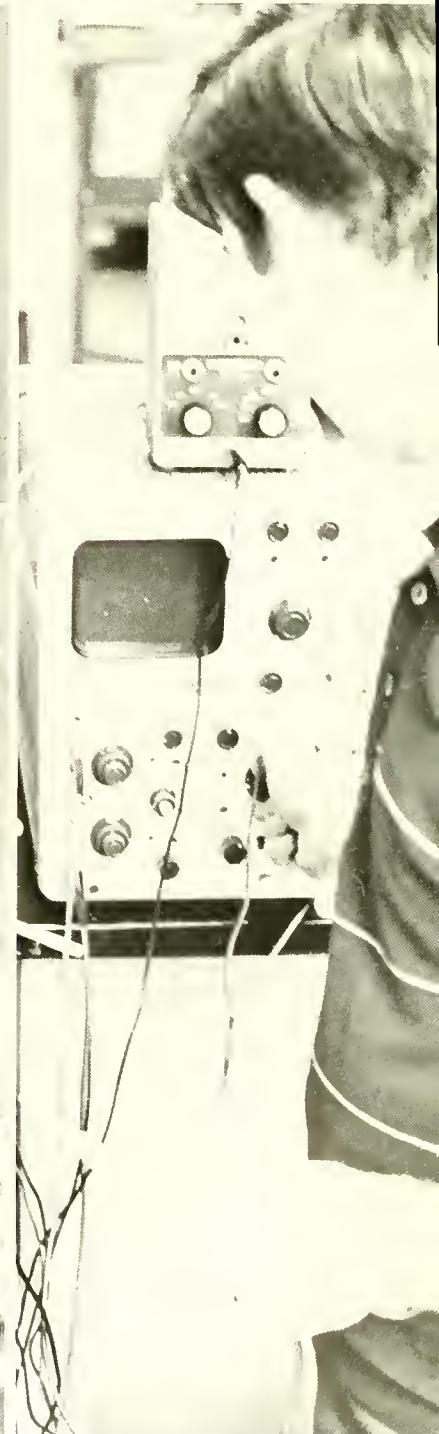

As an educational institution in today's world, our purpose is to teach all people of post high school age, regardless of background and capacity, what they want to learn; to enable each individual to reach his potential of learning and productive citizenship. In the accomplishment of our purpose, businesses, professions, industries, together with government, cultural and social life of the community directly benefit.

The character of education at Gaston College is comprehensive — learning for the adult who cannot read or write . . . for the high school dropout who will begin again . . . the technical worker, to expand or acquire skills . . . the high school graduate who wants to pursue his college program . . . the college graduate for further study in diversified fields.

Gaston College meets the requirements of its purpose through four basic divisions of curriculum, programed currently as follows: College Parallel Division; Engineering Technology Division; Vocational Education; and Adult and Continuing Education Division.

Gaston College Reaches Record Enrollment

Novelist Doris Betts To Open College Culture Series

Mrs. Doris Betts

Author To Hold Discussions On Campus October 13

The first of Gaston College's cultural events for the 1971-72 year will occur on Wednesday, October 7, when Mrs. Doris Betts, widely known novelist, will be on campus to address the student body and also to visit in classes during the day at the eleven o'clock lecture-discussion in the Gaston College library. Mrs. Betts will discuss the modern novel and the problems facing the novelist.

She will arrive at Gaston College in time to visit in the ten o'clock English classes, and after the library discussion she will again visit with English classes.

Mrs. Betts is equally well known as a short story writer and as a novelist. Among her major short story works is THE GENTLE INSURRECTION AND OTHER STORIES. Among her major novels are TALL HOUSES IN WINTER, and THE SCARLET THREAD. Her most recent novel is nearly completed and is expected to hit the book stores at Christmas of this year.

A native of Statesville, North Carolina, Mrs. Betts attended the Statesville schools and worked as a correspondent for the RECORD AND LANDMARK while she was still in high school. Later she worked full-time for the newspaper in Statesville. She is a graduate of the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

The fiction of Mrs. Betts is set in the Piedmont section of North Carolina. TALL HOUSES IN WINTER is set in a fictional town called Stoneville, which bears a very strong resemblance to Statesville. Similarly, her other novels and short stories are drawn scene in fiction.

"I'd be afraid," she said. "If I told the truth, none of them would want to try it." She discussed at length the hardships and problems of modern fiction writing and concluded that "You can make a life of writing but you cannot make a living by it."

Among the problems she stressed are those of very stiff competition, the fluctuation of standards and requirements, and the spreading influx of hacks as opposed to writers.

Mrs. Betts is married to Lowry Betts, attorney. They now live in Sanford and Mrs. Betts teaches creative writing classes at the University of North Carolina.

C.P. Putnam To Publish Novel By Gaston College Instructor

Robert Williams of Gaston College English Department recently signed a contract with G. P. Putnam's Sons for the publication of a novel. The book, AMID ALIEN CORN, is expected to be released in hardback edition in 1972 and in paperback by Berkley Publishing Corporation in 1973.

Williams describes the novel as a sort of sociological and highly symbolic delineation of the emptiness and the decay of modern Americanism. The novel is, according to Williams, "clean enough for the parents of Gaston College students, and dirty enough for the students themselves."

The title AMID ALIEN CORN, Williams explains, is derived from the story of Ruth in the Old Testament and from John Keat's effort with Rowan Technical Institute, which already processes this needed equipment. This will be worked out either by sending our students to Rowan, or perhaps course instructors will come to the campus of Gaston College.

It is also important to note the fact that this course has been approved so that G.I.'s will be able to take it. No date has as yet been set for the revision of this program into the two year stage, but realities at Gaston College seem to have this way of making themselves felt rather quickly and forcefully.

that while registration had been somewhat slow, indications are that the final figures would top last year's mark.

During 1970-71 Gaston enrolled 3309 full-time students. Thus far in 1971, 1671 students had been enrolled by noon Friday, according to Trammell.

Dr. Jimmy Babb, dean of the Vocational Division, estimated that another 342 students would be enrolled before the end of the day. This latest figure would bring the total to 2013.

Last year's all-time high includes winter and spring quarters, as well as the fall term.

students in the College Para Division, which is now known as the Academic Division. In addition, 224 students were enrolled in the evening school. The Vocational Division in 1970-71 had 291 students, while the Technical Division enrolled 18 students. Grand total for that year was 1662.

The above figures do not include students enrolled in the Continuing Education Division, which was formerly known as the Adult Education Division. Last year's figures showed that 7,100 were enrolled in Adult Education.

the song of the nightingale that Ruth heard as she stood in tears amid the alien corn. The major theme, then, of the novel is the tragedy of alienation. Williams says that at best, we are all total strangers. The tragedy of the modern age is that people do not know each other; they are not permitted to know each other and do not have the courage if they are permitted to know each other.

Williams feels that whatever philosophy is in the novel could be found in a triangle of thoughts. One side is Jefferson's comment that our own integrity is the only oracle given to us by heaven, and we are answerable not for the rightness but for the uprightness of our decisions. A second side of the triangle is formed by Jonathan Swift's observation that it is impossible to reason a person middle-sized southern town like Gastonia. The name of the town is Sherman, which suggests first of all that the nation was divided into two factions by the Civil War. General Sherman's sense divided the South, and the history of America since that time has been more and more divided until finally each of us is compelled to live in a universe made up of tiny orbits which are dependent upon each other and yet conflict with each other, that while we cannot find identity for ourselves, we can only prohibit our neighbor from finding his identity.

AMID ALIEN CORN is a novel of dynamics, not ideas, but each element of the plot is based upon an idea that the author feels is important to the American people.

Environment Club Is Formed

From left to right, President Earl Stally, Secretary Pat Camp, Vice-President Tim Ellis, and their advisor, Mr. Whippo. Not present for the picture was Treasurer Steve Beaver. In early April a group of Gaston College students and staff members decided that they do not care what is happening to our environment and decided to make an effort to improve conditions. The result of their efforts is the newest and one of the most active of the campus organizations — the Environmental Club.

Thus far the club, which is advised by faculty members Paul Whippo and Charles Pressley, has met four times, elected temporary officers, and made plans for several long-range projects. At present the club members have written their constitution, which has been approved by the club and is now awaiting approval by the S.G.A.

The purpose of the club is primarily to work toward the improvement of our environment. Ecology is the focal point of the club.

According to Paul Whippo, the name of the club was chosen because the members wanted to distinguish themselves from the usual attitudes toward conservation; environment is more direct, more personal, more meaningful. Whippo stressed the fact that the club is open to students, staff members, alumni — to anyone directly associated with the college. Meetings are presently at 11 o'clock Tuesday and Thursday morning in room S-202.

Project undertaken include cleaning up the five slide project dedicated to saving Cr Mountain, and campus work to prevent erosion, particularly the site of the new industrial building.

Current officers are Staley, president; Tim Ellis, vice-president; Steve Beaver, treasurer; and Pat Camp, secretary.

N.C. District West Collegiate Civitan held its first convention at the Holiday Inn in Charlotte April 10, May 1 and May 2. The clubs participating were Gaston College, Davidson Community College, Richmond Technical Institute, and UNC at Charlotte.

Representing the Gaston Civinettes were Marguerite Long, 1970-71 treasurer for the district, and the recently elected 1971-72 officers for the Gaston club. They Awards were also given for the past performance of the various clubs. Gaston Civinettes were awarded the Most Active Club of the Year and the Best School Project.

The grand finale of the convention was the Miss Civitan International Pageant. The girls were chosen for their poise, ability to answer questions, evening gown competition and work. Several did not see their work printed this year, but their efforts pleased the judges who hope that they will continue writing. There's always next year!

One job is finished and another begins. Mr. Gentry, faculty coordinator, is already thinking of next year's magazine.

"The trick is to get enough work to print," he says. Cash prizes proved to be a good incentive this year; thus Mr. Gentry plans to approach the Civil Club Officers Elected

New officers for the Civil Club were elected at the club's April 14 meeting. New officers for the 1971-72 term are Dan Reel, president; Cary Glover, vice-president; Neil Dyson, secretary; and Dan Adams, treasurer.

The activities of the Civil Club include the following: a trip to the National Survey Convention in Washington, D.C.; design and construction of the water fountain between the administration and college parallel buildings; participation in intramural football, basketball, and softball; sponsorship of various activities and speakers dealing with civil engineering; and presentation of a Man of the Year award to the outstanding graduating member; participation in March of Dimes program sponsored by Inter-Club Council.

The purpose of the club is to further the members' knowledge

Class Gives Check To College

The Gaston College Freshman Class presented a check for $259.32 to the Gaston College Building Fund to be applied to funds for the student services building to be constructed on the campus upon completion of the Industrial Building which is currently being constructed on campus. The money represented proceeds from a campus barbeque sponsored by the Freshman Class.

At the present time students at Gaston College have nowhere to go between classes or in bad weather except to their cars in the parking lot. The present student center and the library will accommodate only a fraction of the students. The proposed student services building will include lounge and study areas, reading rooms, snack bar, bookstore, student activity offices, and a small teaching auditorium for large classes, drama activities, and lecture and musical presentations.
